

Contents

Introduction.....	9
Theoretical references	13
Path-dependency and institutional change	13
Socialism as an institutional substitute for liberal capitalist modernity.....	14
Post-socialist transition as a path-dependent process	16
Stabilisation of clientelistic regimes.....	20
Building alternatives from below.....	22
Local-global interconnectedness as an object of investigation	23
Urban governance	24
The redefinition of the city	26
The restructuring of urban government	27
The specificity of place.....	28
The emergence of international production networks	30
The social creation of meaning.....	33
Research methodology.....	35
Research objectives and methodological approach.....	35
Methodology of the empirical investigation.....	41
The Romanian transformation regime	44

Historical patterns of political and economic development.....	44
Pre-socialist development.....	45
Development under socialist rule.....	47
Social and cultural background	49
Persistence of familist patterns: »It stinks a bit, but it's warm«.....	49
The economy of »getting along«.....	51
The »chaotic democracy« and its consequences	53
The emergence of a party clientelist system.....	53
Performance of the democratic institutions	60
The consequences of economic transformation	61
»In the land of the blind, the one-eyed man is king«: Resources and frameworks determining local action in Timisoara	65
Material resources: the social and economic profile of Timis County.....	65
General overview.....	65
Privatisation and property structure.....	67
Economic structure and performance	70
Agriculture.....	72
Human capital endowment	74
The shadow economy and border trade.....	77
Conclusions	79
History and identity: The distinctiveness of the Banat	80
The historical development of private property, democratic traditions, and regional identity	80
The legal and institutional frameworks for local action.....	84
The general institutional framework of local public administration.....	84
The functioning of local government	89
Opportunities for clientelistic interventions.....	90

Administrative corruption and bureaucratic inefficiency.....	92
Actors and strategies on the county level.....	94
The influence of the central authorities	94
The role of the county council	95
Regional development policy under the impact of Europeanization.....	100
European Union accession as a general framework for regional development policy	100
The Development Region West	103
Cross-border cooperation within the Danube-Kris-Mures-Tisza euroregion.....	107
Analytical framework: Networks of opportunity, opportunities for networking	109
Local strategies and policy models	111
»The star«, »the heart«, and the forgotten starlet of the Banat	112
Types of mayors in Timis County: »The poet«, »the administrator« and the »well-connected«	116
»Progressive«, »pragmatic«, and »opportunistic« local policy models in Timis County.....	119
Strategies of local actors in Timisoara.....	121
Organisational »cores« of local policy	122
Timisoara city hall – organisational structure, tasks and revenues.....	122
The CCIAT – organisational structure, tasks and revenues	124
Institutionalisation patterns on the local level in Timisoara	126
Timisoara elites: networks of friends and colleagues.....	130
History in the discourse of local elites	133
The specificity of Timisoara within the Romanian context: the relevance of transnational cooperation.....	135

Transnational cooperation and institutional innovation.....	136
Building institutional capacities: ADETIM – the Economic Development Agency of Timis County.....	137
Creating instruments for local development: The Timisoara area local development strategy	139
Transnational integration of the local economy	147
Timisoara, nuova provincia veneta	148
Technological innovation and localised learning.....	157
Local actors in technological innovation	157
Tradition and modernism in the clothing industry.....	163
Urban governance in transnational contexts.....	168
The privatisation of the drinking water network.....	169
The city administration's elderly care project	173
Limitations and ambivalences of transnational cooperation.....	179
The explanatory value of the different theoretical approaches and the relevance of fieldwork	182
Acknowledgements.....	185
Bibliography.....	186