

Contents

Foreword	7
Mirjana Morokvasic, A. Senganata Münst, Sigrid Metz-Göckel Gendered mobilities in an enlarged Europe	9
I. International division of (reproductive) labour in the context of post-wall Europe
Krystyna Slany Female migration from Central-Eastern Europe: demographic and sociological aspects	27
Claudia Finotelli Migration policy between restrictive purposes and structural demand: the case of the domestic sector in Germany and in Italy	52
Ludovica Banfi Whose status matters? An analysis of Italian couples' demand for domestic workers and nannies	79
II. When the welfare state fails: private solutions for public duties
Ayşe Akalın Turning labour into love: the employment of migrant domestic workers in Turkey	103
Dobrochna Katwa Commuting between private lives	121

Sabine Hess

The boundaries of monetarizing domestic work: au pairs and the moral economy of caring 141

III. Migration as a resource

David Karjanen

Women's 'Just-in-Time' migration 159

Norbert Cyrus

Managing a mobile life: changing attitudes among illegally employed Polish household workers in Berlin 179

A. Senganata Münt

Social capital in migration processes of Polish undocumented care- and household workers 203

Roos Pijpers

Circumventing restrictions on free movement of labour: evidence from a Dutch-German border region 225

IV. Multidirectional flows – Poland at the cross-roads

Dorota Przaszłowicz

Women at the cross-road: Poland and its emigration and immigration 249

Krystyna Slany, Magdalena Ślusarczyk,

Immigrants in Poland: legal and socio-demographic situation 281

The authors 302