

Contents

	page
List of Figures	viii
List of Tables	ix
Acronyms	x
Glossary of Terms	xii
Acknowledgements	xiv
Chapter 1. Introduction	1
I. The Approach	1
II. The Knowledge Systems	2
III. Findings	3
1. Knowledge Dynamics	3
2. Power and Knowledge	4
3. Knowledge and Culture	5
Chapter 2. Theoretical Background	7
I. What is Knowledge?	7
1. Theoretical Knowledge	8
2. Declarative Knowledge	10
3. Procedural Knowledge	11
4. Dynamic Knowledge	12
5. Not Just Information	13
II. Why is Agricultural Knowledge Important?	14
1. Defining Agricultural Knowledge	15

ii	Argorods of Western Uzbekistan: Knowledge Control and Agriculture in Khorezm
2.	Tacit 'Know-How' as Knowledge	15
3.	Agricultural Knowledge and ZEF	16
4.	Agricultural Regulations as Knowledge	17
III.	Farmer Knowledge Systems	18
1.	Between Local & Universal Knowledge	19
2.	Accessing and Assessing Local Knowledge	20
3.	Knowledge in Cultural Contexts	21
IV.	Knowledge Governance	22
1.	Knowledge Control	23
2.	Politicised Science	25
3.	Intellectual Isolation	26
4.	Negative Incentives	28
5.	Power and Governance	29
V.	University Knowledge Management	31
1.	Research as 'New' Knowledge	32
2.	Mediating Knowledge	33
3.	Spreading Knowledge	34
4.	Can KM 'Travel' to Uzbekistan	36
VI.	Knowledge sharing between groups	37
1.	Intensity and Scope	38
2.	Directions of Knowledge Sharing	40
3.	Networks as Knowledge Creators	41
VII.	Summary	43
Chapter 3. Methodology		45
I.	An Anthropological Approach	45
1.	The Extended Case Study	47
2.	Storytelling?	48
i.	Reliability	48
ii.	Replicability	50
iii.	Representativeness	51
iv.	The Centrality of Theory	52
3.	Inter-subjectivity	54
i.	Situational	54
ii.	Protectionist	55
iii.	Reactive	56
4.	Reflexivity	58

---

II.	Ethical Considerations	60
1.	Ethical Principles	61
i.	Self-Determinism	61
ii.	Non-maleficance	62
iii.	Justice and Beneficence	63
III.	Entry into the Field	64
1.	Prior Work and Established Introductions	64
2.	Working as Part of a Project	65
3.	Field Setting	66
4.	Site Selection	70
5.	The Argorod as an Introduction	70
IV.	Specific Methods Employed	71
i.	Unstructured Interviews	71
ii.	(Semi) Structured Interviews	73
iii.	Direct Observation	74
iv.	Use of Archival/Documentary Data	75
v.	Sociological Survey	76
vi.	Using a Research Assistant	79
V.	Analytical Tools Employed	80
1.	Validation / Triangulation	80
2.	Deviant Case Analysis	80
3.	Coding Procedures	81
VI.	Summary of Methods Used	83
Chapter 4.	Local Knowledge Systems	85
I.	The Master	85
1.	Types of Specialisation and their Social Origins	86
i.	The Master and their training	87
ii.	Soviet labour organisation	91
iii.	Cultural tasks	94
iv.	Ex Officio	100
v.	The Cultural Embeddedness of Masters	102
2.	Modes of Knowledge Reproduction	105
i.	Familial Training	105
ii.	External Sources	108
II.	Cotton & Wheat - Norms, Nomenclature and Know How	110
1.	Determining the State Plan	111

iv	Argorods of Western Uzbekistan: Knowledge Control and Agriculture in Khorezm
2.	Norms and 'Know How'	113
3.	The 'Pakaz' & Power	115
4.	Coping with Cotton and Wheat	119
5.	Innovation within the State Plan	122
III.	Knowledge Lost?	123
1.	Livestock Production	124
2.	Post Harvest Processing	126
3.	Post-Soviet Knowledge Loss	128
4.	Limits on Knowledge	132
IV.	Collective Knowledge	133
1.	Unitary Nature	134
2.	Horizontal Knowledge Sharing	136
V.	Summary of Indigenous Knowledge	139
Chapter 5. Knowledge Governance in Uzbekistan		141
I.	'Soviet Science' - A History	141
1.	Politically Correct Science	142
2.	Intellectual Monogamy	144
3.	Scientific Culture	145
4.	Foreigner's Experiences	147
II.	The Impact of 'Soviet Science' On Khorezm	149
1.	Mechanisation	150
2.	State Goals as Scientific Goals	155
i.	Awards and Advancement	158
ii.	Punishment	160
iii.	Applied Research	162
iv.	Physical Sciences over the Social Sciences	164
III.	Post-Socialist progress?	167
1.	(Still) Politicised Science	168
i.	Cotton Comes Before College	169
ii.	Islam Karimov: President, Scientist, Economist, Historian	171
iii.	Old Academy, New Academy	176
iv.	Controlling Knowledge	177
2.	Knowledge Loss in Universities and Institutes	180
3.	Competition for Funding	183
IV.	A Model of Knowledge Governance in Khorezm	184

---

Chapter 6	ZEF Knowledge Management	187
I.	What Knowledge?	187
1.	What kinds of knowledge exist within the project?	188
2.	What constitutes knowledge?	190
3.	What Knowledge is valid?	191
i.	Impact on Development Research	194
ii.	Impact on Interdisciplinary Collaboration	195
4.	Why the ZEF/UNESCO Project exists	196
II.	Creating Knowledge	199
1.	The PhD Student as Knowledge Creator	199
i.	Knowledge Loss	200
ii.	Problems for Knowledge Sharing	202
2.	Other Knowledge Creators within the Project	204
III.	Knowledge Sharing	205
1.	Knowledge Sharing within the Project	206
2.	The Project and its Partners	214
i.	UrDU and the Khorezm partners	214
ii.	Tashkent Institutes	217
iii.	International Donor Community	221
IV.	Knowledge Dissemination	222
1.	Existing Extension	223
2.	Project Plans	226
3.	Making Knowledge Acceptable to the Rural Community	229
V.	Summary of Project Knowledge Management	232
Chapter 7.	Practical Implications	235
I.	Knowledge Sharing Between the Knowledge Systems	235
1.	Peasants and the Project	236
2.	Hokim and Dekhan – A vertical of power?	238
3.	The Project and Local Elites	240
4.	Power and Knowledge in Khorezm	241
II.	The Project – Managing Knowledge from Research to Implementation	242
1.	Managing an Inventory of Knowledge	243
2.	Research Collaboration and Project Staffing	244
3.	Retaining Knowledge	245
4.	Utilising Research for Development	246

III. A Poverty of Knowledge	248
1. Appreciating and Accessing Local Knowledge	249
i. Accord dignity to local knowledge holders	249
ii. Respect local specialists	250
iii. Understand how local knowledge is culturally embedded	251
iv. Maintaining a constant willingness to learn and accept	252
2. Working towards Appropriate and Accessible Technologies	252
3. Succession Planning and Sustainability	254
IV. Development Under Knowledge Control	255
1. Governance Structures and Knowledge	255
2. Universities, Institutes and Foreign Projects	256
3. Rural Khorezm – Arrested Development	257
Chapter 8. Theoretical Implications	259
I. Knowledge Governance & Power	259
1. Good and Poor Governance	260
i. Re-Orientating Government	261
ii. Accountability & the Rule of Law	264
iii. Participation	266
2. Institutions Matter	267
3. Universities and the State	269
II. Knowledge Loss	270
1. Drivers of Knowledge Loss	271
i. Death or Displacement	272
ii. Misuse and Misplacement	272
iii. Leakage	273
2. Existing Retention Strategies	273
i. Training and Knowledge Transmission	274
ii. Databases	274
iii. Coercion	275
3. Knowledge Loss as a Theory	275
III. Knowledge for Development	277
1. Defining ‘Development Research’	277
i. The Hydra of Development	278
ii. Researching Development	279
iii. Using Research for Development	279
2. Applying Participatory Development to Development Research	280
3. The Challenge of Development Research	281

i. Academic Pressures	282
ii. Ethical Case	283
IV. New Ignorance	284
1. Changing Gender Relations in rural Khorezm	285
2. Land Tenure and Labour Relations	286
3. The ZEF/UNESCO project – knowledge for development	286
4. Power & Knowledge Governance from the Centre	287
5. Knowledge Loss	288
6. Local Knowledge in its Cultural Context	288
Chapter 9. Conclusions	291
I. Agricultural Knowledge in Khorezm	291
1. Interactions between Knowledge Systems	292
II. Knowledge Dynamics	293
1. The Dynamism of Knowledge Loss	293
2. Knowledge Sharing and Creation	294
3. Making Knowledge Systems Dynamic	294
III. Power and Knowledge	295
1. Power in the Kishlak	296
2. Knowledge and Control	296
3. Scientia Potentia Est?	297
IV. Knowledge and Culture	297
1. Culturally Grounded Research in Khorezm	299
V. Final Remarks	300
Bibliography	301
Appendix	317