

Table of Contents

1	Introduction and Motivation	11
2	Theoretical Analysis of GATT/WTO	14
2.1	Political-economy Approach I	16
2.1.1	General Equilibrium Model	16
2.1.2	Unilateral Trade Policy	19
2.1.3	The Value of Reciprocal Trade Agreements	20
2.1.4	Results	23
2.2	Political-economy Approach II	25
2.2.1	The Model	26
2.2.2	Unilateral Trade Policy	29
2.2.3	Trade Agreements	33
2.2.4	Results	34
2.3	Commitment Approach	36
2.3.1	The Model	36
2.3.2	Empirical Evaluation	40
3	Empirical Analysis of GATT/WTO	41
3.1	The General Effect of GATT/WTO on International Trade	42
3.1.1	Empirical Model	43
3.1.2	Results	48
3.1.3	Sensitivity Analysis	51
3.1.4	Intermediate Conclusion	57
3.2	The Generalized System of Preferences	58
3.2.1	Why Should the GSP Impede Trade?	60
3.2.2	The Model	64
3.2.3	General Effects	65
3.2.4	Dynamic Effects	68
3.2.5	GSP Recipients' State of Development, Geographic Location and Specific GSP Schemes	72
3.2.6	Intermediate Conclusion	76
3.3	Multilateralism versus Regionalism?!	78
3.3.1	Stylized Facts about Regional Trade Arrangements	79
3.3.2	Two Camps – Friends or Foes?	84
3.3.3	Literature Review – Empirics	87

3.3.4 General Research Strategy	89
3.3.5 Results	95
3.3.6 Intermediate Conclusion	106
4 Conclusion and Future Prospects	107
A Appendix: Countries and Data	108
B Appendix: Econometric Issues	113
C Appendix: Multilateralism versus Regionalism?!	120
References	123
Summary	134
Subject Index	135