

Contents

Introduction . . . . .	11
Research Question . . . . .	11
A fundamental change? . . . . .	13
Methodology . . . . .	17
Structure . . . . .	20
Chapter 1: Conceptual framework . . . . .	23
Idealism and assumptions in U.S. foreign policy . . . . .	27
U.S. exceptionalism . . . . .	27
Confirmation of U.S. values: Idealism . . . . .	30
A realist vision of world order. . . . .	30
Calls for U.S. assertiveness: Neoconservatism. . . . .	32
When idealism and realism converge . . . . .	34
Competing interests . . . . .	36
Democracy promotion as a means to fight the root causes of terrorism . . . . .	39
Policy implementation and practical obstacles . . . . .	41
Bureaucrats, incentives and structures . . . . .	43
NGOs and structural challenges . . . . .	45
Contested development theories . . . . .	47
Lack of definition . . . . .	47
Expectations of the role of outsiders . . . . .	49
Pre-requisites for democracy? . . . . .	51
Cultural preconditions . . . . .	51
Developmental pre-requisites. . . . .	52
Modernization versus democratization . . . . .	54
Elections . . . . .	55
Civil society. . . . .	56
Repercussions of U.S. policies . . . . .	57
Conclusion . . . . .	58
Chapter 2: The Bush administration's foreign policy orientation prior to 9/11. . . . .	59
Foreign policy discourse up to the 2000 U.S. presidential elections . . . . .	59
Issues of concern. . . . .	61
Focus on Great Powers and traditional security issues . . . . .	61
The Middle East and democracy promotion . . . . .	63
Advocating a conventional foreign policy . . . . .	64
Once in office . . . . .	65

Policies towards Great Powers and traditional security issues . . . . . 65

Policies towards the Middle East . . . . . 68

Conclusion . . . . . 69

Chapter 3: The development of the new foreign policy rationale. . . . . 71

Existential war and determination to act. . . . . 71

    Asserting U. S. power . . . . . 71

    A war of values . . . . . 72

    Retaliation. . . . . 74

    The way foreign policy was conducted . . . . . 76

    Providing an intellectual framework . . . . . 77

Reconsideration of prior policies . . . . . 79

    Self-reflection-why do they hate us? . . . . . 79

    Support for authoritarian states reconsidered. . . . . 81

    Democracy as a means to an end . . . . . 82

    Supporting evidence for democracy promotion. . . . . 84

    Re-orientation of foreign policy . . . . . 87

Conclusion . . . . . 88

Chapter 4: The new foreign policy orientation: U. S. initiatives . . . . . 89

New measures post 9/11: A radical departure in policy? Raising expectations 89

    Diplomatic pressure. . . . . 90

    Increase in funding at the State Department and USAID . . . . . 91

    Middle East Partnership Initiative (MEPI) . . . . . 94

    Middle East Free Trade Area (MEFTA). . . . . 96

    Broader Middle East and North Africa Initiative (BMENA) . . . . . 97

    Millennium Challenge Corporation (MCC) . . . . . 98

    Support for NGOs . . . . . 99

New measures post 9/11: Implementation of policies . . . . . 100

    Diplomatic pressure. . . . . 100

    Increase in funding at the State Department and USAID . . . . . 101

    Middle East Partnership Initiative (MEPI) . . . . . 103

    Middle East Free Trade Area (MEFTA). . . . . 104

    Broader Middle East and North Africa Initiative (BMENA) . . . . . 105

    Millennium Challenge Corporation (MCC) . . . . . 106

    Support for NGOs . . . . . 106

Conclusion . . . . . 108

Chapter 5: U. S. initiatives in Morocco . . . . . 111

At the periphery of U. S. interests. . . . . 111

How U. S. initiatives applied to Morocco. . . . . 112

U.S. idealism and competing interests . . . . .	112
Contested development theories . . . . .	113
Implementation of new rationale . . . . .	114
Diplomatic pressure. . . . .	115
Increase in funding at the State Department and USAID . . . . .	115
Middle East Partnership Initiative (MEPI) . . . . .	118
Middle East Free Trade Area (MEFTA). . . . .	119
Broader Middle East and North Africa Initiative (BMENA) . . . . .	119
Millennium Challenge Corporation (MCC). . . . .	120
Support for NGOs . . . . .	120
Additional measures & bilateral relations . . . . .	121
Morocco's political structure . . . . .	123
Legitimacy of the King . . . . .	123
Monopoly over the reform discourse . . . . .	125
Conservatism and tolerance . . . . .	127
Weak political opposition . . . . .	128
Marginalization . . . . .	131
Conclusion . . . . .	133
Chapter 6: U.S. Policy in practice: Conceptual framework applied . . . . .	135
Idealism and assumptions in U.S. foreign policy: Middle East . . . . .	135
U.S. exceptionalism . . . . .	135
When idealism and realism merge . . . . .	137
Idealism and assumptions in U.S. foreign policy: Morocco . . . . .	141
U.S. exceptionalism . . . . .	141
When idealism and realism merge . . . . .	142
Competing interests: Middle East . . . . .	143
Democracy promotion as a means to fight the root causes of terrorism . . . . .	144
Policy implementation and practical obstacles . . . . .	145
NGOs and structural challenges . . . . .	149
Competing interests: Morocco . . . . .	150
Democracy promotion as a means to fight the root causes of terrorism . . . . .	151
Policy implementation and practical obstacles . . . . .	152
Bureaucrats, incentives and structures . . . . .	154
NGOs and structural challenges . . . . .	156
Contested development theories: Middle East . . . . .	158
Expectations of the role of outsiders . . . . .	158
Pre-requisites for democracy? . . . . .	160
Elections . . . . .	161
Civil society. . . . .	163
Modernization versus democratization . . . . .	164

Developmental pre-requisites. . . . .	166
Repercussions of U.S. policies. . . . .	168
Contested development theories: Morocco . . . . .	172
Expectation of the role of outsiders . . . . .	172
Pre-requisites for democracy? . . . . .	173
Elections . . . . .	174
Civil society. . . . .	175
Modernization versus democratization . . . . .	177
Developmental pre-requisites. . . . .	178
Repercussions of U.S. policies. . . . .	179
Conclusion . . . . .	181
Conclusion . . . . .	183
A fundamental change? . . . . .	184
Obstacles to policy implementation . . . . .	185
Outlook . . . . .	188
Appendices . . . . .	193
Bibliography . . . . .	199