

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments.....	5
CHAPTER I
Holocaust Film and European Memory.....	9
The Holocaust: Europe's Foundational Myth?	9
Holocaust Memory – Beyond Narratives and Images?	15
History, Memory and Film	18
CHAPTER II
An Entangled European History: Holocaust Comedy Europa, Europa (Germany-Poland-France 1990)	25
20 th Century Europe: A Philosophical Tale	26
Europe from a Jewish Perspective	30
Polish History in Europa, Europa	36
The Portrayal of Germans in Europa, Europa	44
The Reception of Europa, Europa : Polish Reactions	50
Competing for the American Academy Award: German Rejection and Polish Indignation	53
Europa, Europa in Germany: Hitlerjunge Salomon	56
Conclusions 62
CHAPTER III
Holocaust Melodrama: Beyond History – or Burdened with the Past? Aimée and Jaguar (Germany, 1998) and Far away from the Window (Poland, 2000)	65
The German and Polish Films' Common Theme and Style	66
Aimée and Jaguar and Far away from the Window in German and Polish Press Discussion.....	68
The Historical Discourse of Aimée and Jaguar : An Ordinary Woman in the Nazi Era	75
The Historical Discourse of Far away from the Window : The Mythical Matka-Polka Confronted with the Holocaust.....	82

The Jewish Character and German-Jewish Relations in Aimée and Jaguar : A Positive Symbiosis?	90
Closed in the Past: The Portrayal of the Jewish Character in Far away from the Window	96
Conclusions	101
CHAPTER IV
Collective Portraits of Poles and Germans. The Narrative of “Ordinary People” in Just beyond this Forest (Poland, 1991), Burial of a Potato (Poland, 1990), and Jewboy Levi (Germany, 1999).	103
Common Theme and Filmic Style	104
Representation of Ordinary Germans in Jewboy Levi	110
Ordinary Poles in Just beyond this Forest and Burial of a Potato	118
Jewboy Levi , Just beyond this Forest , and Burial of a Potato in the German and Polish Press Discussions	128
“Ordinary People” in the German and Polish Historical Discourses	133
The Category of “Ordinary People” in the German Debate	133
“Ordinary People” in the Polish Historical Discourse	140
Conclusions	147
CHAPTER V
Conclusions	149
What Is Remembered? From Grand Events to the Stories of Ordinary People	150
Who Remembers? The “Negative” Memory	154
How Is the Holocaust Remembered? The Limits of “Europeanization”	158
Bibliography	165